The President Speaks

EACH year as the college opens we aim to give to the new students especially a small handbook of information prepared by a student committee of publication. This committee usually requests the Deans and the President to prepare a short message to be inserted in the little book. I am venturing to present here the message I have prepared for this year, thinking that it may interest our alumni to know something of the word that greeted the freshman today on the threshold of his college years.

This year we begin our college work under circumstances which have never faced us before. No longer can any of us think of ourselves as individuals or as a group cut off even temporarily from interest in world affairs. We are one with boys who were here a year ago but who are now on the other side of the world. We will be remembering them in our chapel prayers and thinking of them when we read the news or listen to the radio.

We shall miss, however, the great lesson they have left for us unless we come to our work in the assurance that what we are today will condition what we can be tomorrow. The quality of earnestness and dependability, the refusal to shirk the hard tasks, above all the abiding resolution to do one's best always—these are characteristics that are coveted in the men and the women who are called to serve their country. They are traits that need to be cultivated in the less strenuous days of your college career.

Then too "you have need of patience" to assure yourself that if, like Lincoln, you "study and get ready" there is certainty that
"your chance" will come.

There is the assurance also even from the President of the United States that those who have the capability to pursue a college course are serving the nation while they are doing so, pending a call to other service.

Let us therefore give ourselves sincerely to the tasks in hand. If you do so I can assure you that you will soon find yourselves happily at home here in a goodly fellowship of those who are like-minded and anxious to help you in your adjustments. Please command me for any help I can give.

THE TALK OF THE CAMPUS

Commencement

AT JUNIATA'S sixty-sixth commencement, seventy-four diplomas were awarded on Monday morning, June 1, in Oller Hall. Seven others are expected to receive degrees at the close of the summer session. These exercises climaxed an eventful weekend of graduation functions made pleasant by sunshiny weather and the presence of many close friends.

About seven hundred people attended the exercises to honor the graduating class of 1942 and to hear Professor Theodore M. Greene, of Princeton University, deliver a stirring commencement address. Professor Greene pointed out that the seniors were graduating into a world in which countless men and women are striving their utmost to overcome ignorance, to substitute justice for injustice, hope for despair, beauty for ugliness, love for hatred. He added: "You are about to leave this quiet valley for a world full of good and evil, hope and fear, greed and self sacrificial devotion." He further stated that our society needs men and women who are genuinely literate and articulate; who are well-informed about their complete environment—natural, social and cosmic; who are sensitive to beauty, to goodness and to holiness; who have a sane perspective; who are integrated, intellectually, emotionally, and spiritually, and who have the courage of their convictions; who think before they act but are able to decide and act even when the future is uncertain and when decision and action involve a risk; whose faith and courage enable them to be resolute when others falter.

Presenting

Juniata's first alumna to represent the Association on the Board of Trustees—Martha Mentzer. All who know Martha and the variety of her different interests in the college will agree that she deserves this singular recognition. This ardor for Juniata has been expressed in many ways from a blue and gold color scheme in her third floor den to charter membership in the One Hundred Club. There always seem to be students at Juniata who come through her influence. Very little has happened in connection with women's league or alumni functions in Altoona without the benefit of Martha's support. Naturally, her interests are not confined to her alma mater but they do center chiefly in these three agencies: Keith Junior High School, 28th Street Church of the Brethren, and Juniata College. And the most extra-curricular activity of hers is a Studebaker car. Offhand, we think she keeps them all on a strict time budget.

Baccalaureate

The baccalaureate sermon was built upon the union of two scripture texts: "The foundation of God standeth sure . . . therefore be ye steadfast unmovable always abounding in the work of the Lord". 2 Timothy 2:19; 1 Corinthians 15:58. The sermon was by President Ellis.

With a reference to the many things of our time that are being shaken, the speaker stressed the confidence which steadies us in the knowledge that the truth of God stands sure. This truth however must become personalized and dynamic in Christian living which repudiates iniquity as well as radiates righteousness.

The sermon charged that we as a nation are not only guilty of sins which go unchallenged but that we have even "lost the power of moral indignation."

The conclusion made reference to Dr. O. P. Hoover and Dr. T. T. Myers, former members of the college faculty, as men who had left an abiding influence when they went to get their crown.

Since the College will publish the sermon in pamphlet form, it is suggested that any who are interested in a full report may send for a copy.

Alumni Luncheon

Popular as ever, the annual alumni luncheon was held in its usual splendor with a capacity attendance despite the limitation on travel. Dr. Martin Allen Brumbaugh, '18, professor of statistics at the University of Buffalo and author of several college textbooks, gave an interesting and timely address on the economic problems of the war. In fact, his treatment of inflation, gas and tire rationing, labor difficulties, and future predictions were so up-to-date that one could take him for a federal coordinator.

The retiring president, Dr. Dana Z. Eckert, '12, presided at the luncheon. He recognized all the reunion classes and presented Joseph V. Kline, who welcomed the neophyte alumni class of 1942 into the alumni association. Herbert Landes, president, and the newly elected class representative, gave an appropriate response.

The dining hall was beautifully decorated with red, white, and blue flowers, and small American flags were attractively arranged on each table. The reunion classes sat together at reserved tables. Napkins, on which were printed the individual names of seniors, served as place cards for the 1942 graduates.

Class Reunions

There was little doubt in the minds of students, graduates and alumni about whose classes were having reunions over the commencement weekend. The lone representative of the sixty-year class, the Rev. George N. Falkenstein, of the class of 1882, who spent the entire weekend on the campus endeared himself to many. Mr. Falkenstein gave a very interesting talk at the annual business meeting of the association in the old chapel on Saturday morning. Other platform guests were the six members of the fifty-year reunion class of 1892. They were:

J. H. Swan, Jacob Harley, J. A. Myers, D. L. Miller, Mrs. Mamie Harper Swan, and William C. Hanawalt. Doctor Swan, the class president, spoke well for these grads in a few brief remarks. Jacob Harley traveled from Florida for the occasion.

The class of '97 had a rather unique reunion supper at the Home Management House (Oller House) through the courteous arrangement of Miss Bessie Rohrer. Those who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bosserman, Dr. and Mrs. D. D. Kauffman, Mr. and Mrs. Hervey C. Keim, the Rev. John M. Pittenger, Miss Bessie Rohrer, and Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Stevenson.

The classes of '02, '07, and '12 confined their reunions to the alumni luncheon, Saturday noon.

The Hotel Penn Hunt was the meeting place for the classes of '17 and '22. Persons attending the '17 reunion were: Carmen Newcomer, Mrs. Lillian Rohrer, Mrs. Alice Brumbaugh Dove, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Rummel, Mrs. Charles Laher, and Rev. E. G. Diehm. Seven members of the '22 class were present at their "get-together": Dr. and Mrs. Paul Holsinger, M. Bertha Brower, Thalia Hershey, Anna G. Price, Frank Magill, and Jesse L. Stayer.

The 1927 group had their gathering at the Penn Koffee Shoppe, which was attended by: Earl W. Dickey, Catharine Rohrbaugh, Mrs. Edna H. Lockart, Mrs. George Detweiler, Jerusha E. Myers, S. Elizabeth Englar, Rachel Treece, Agnes Beam, Ruth Cunningham Harley, Telford Blough, Louise L.

Young, Mrs. Lois H. Gibbel, and Jimmie Weimer. The '37 class also had their meeting at the Penn Koffee Shoppe. Persons assembled were: Naomi Ranck French, Florence Fenstermacher, Ned Johnston, Jack McCartney, Thelma Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Olin Brougher, Edna Hoover, Paul Hoover, Christine Rosenberger Connors, Ruth Joseph, Ellen Kauffman, Nancy Pandolfino, Betty Graybill, and Mildred Wertz.

The reunion for the '32 class was held at the Gray Goose Tea Room. The following people were in attendance: Marjorie Kirk Crippen, Mr. and Mrs. James Harley, Mrs. Marjorie Friend Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Poulson, Joseph MacCarroll, Mary E. Ford, Betty Gregory Ross, George C. Gates, James W. Harkness, Estelle Shultz Cage, and Margaret Baker Cuppett.

'38 Class Memorial

Class representative Lieutenant Rhodes and a committee are enthusiastically backing the establishment of an endowment fund for the purchase of books for the college library as a worth while class memorial. Mary Radebach is chairman of the committee and her helpers are A. Kathryn Oller, Corporal A. Lynn Corcelius, and Jean Foulke. Money is being received through voluntary contributions from the class. If members care to have their annual contribution to the alumni fund assigned to the class memorial library fund, they should indicate "'38 Memorial Library Fund" on the alumni contribution card when gifts are sent to members of the committee or to the alumni office.

A Huntingdon bank is the depository for the fund. The interest derived from the fund will be turned over to the college librarian and her committee to be used for books. The choice of purchase is entirely under the jurisdiction of the library.

Juniata's Summer Session

With the opening of this year's summer session, Juniata College is accelerating its program to such an extent that a complete reorganization has been made. Instead of the traditional nine weeks, the session covers a period of ten weeks and is divided into two terms of five weeks each. Six hours of credit may be earned in each term.

In spite of this marked acceleration, the session is larger than usual, with a great many more men than women. This has come about because a number of draft boards have deferred young men, who can demonstrate that they are actively engaged in completing a college course in the shortest possible time.

The total enrollment is about 135 including special students. The classroom work is being carried on by the regular college faculty with the exception of two well-known visiting faculty members, Miss Olive Jacobs, Instructor in Art, and Dr. Frederick Dove of Bridgewater College, Instructor in Psychology. During the second term a course in Biblical History is being given by Dr. Tobias Henry.

WILLIAM R. FLORY, '21
President, National Alumni Assoc.
Harrisburg, Pa.

Dear Fellow Juniataians:

To chart a course for a college alumni association during a time like this is a major undertaking. I venture into it only because I know that the Juniata Alumni vigor and enthusiasm is dependable.

Alumni deserve to share in the successes of the past year. The books closed showing a normal enrollment, the financial record in the black and a marked increase in alumni giving.

Even though we face an unpredictable year, we can all be sure of one thing—that our common interest and reenforcement will keep going one stabilizing agency for present and future good, our Alma Mater.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM R. FLORY
President, Alumni Assoc.

In step with the accelerated academic program an active student social committee is keeping leisure hours well filled with varied activities including a mountain day outing to The Old Forge, a formal garden party, a variety of indoor and outdoor Saturday night parties, a watermelon party, sunset and moonlight hikes, swimming parties, bowling matches, and impromptu dramatics. In addition the program has included the Stuyvesant Trio of New York, as the outstanding artistic performance of the session. Four movies are being shown at Oller Hall. Each Sunday afternoon at 4:15 a program of recordings is arranged in the Carnegie Music Room and occasionally during the week additional listening hours are scheduled.

Departmental Recognition

Some three years ago the American Chemical Society decided to rate the chemistry departments of educational institutions applying for recognition on the basis of their ability to train young men and women for the profession of chemistry. Five hundred institutions applied. In the latest list published, just one hundred and twenty of the five hundred had been finally approved among which was Juniata College. It is completely believed that this much coveted accrediting was realized because of the excellent cooperation of Juniata's chemistry graduates both while in college and later in active practice.

A PERSONALIZED PROGRAM FOR FRESHMEN

Can you imagine what it would be like to be one of over 3,000 freshmen on a campus containing over 10,000 students? Those of us who have had this experience will readily agree with graduates of smaller institutions that a small college has the opportunity of offering its students some things that are important that are likely to be missing on campuses where mass production methods are employed. Most of these advantages are related in one way or another to the fact that the relationships on the campus of a small institution tend to be personal rather than impersonal. To show the role played by personal relationships in the Juniata freshman program is the purpose of this article.

The program for freshmen at Juniata is personalized in a large number of ways. From the first day of "Freshman Week" (a period of three days prior to the beginning of classes) an attempt is made to make each student at home in his new environment. A "Mixer", a tour of the campus, a hike and picnic at Cold Springs, a preview of the year's activities by the Student Senate, a "Variety Hour", a lecture on the history of the College, a reception by the President—such functions and activities as these help to make each student at home in, and a part of, the new world in which he finds himself. Freshman Week also provides an opportunity for the College to learn to know each student's aptitudes and abilities, as revealed by standard tests.

One of the courses normally taken by freshmen during their first semester at Juniata is "The Mind"—a course that is related to most of the features of the freshman program here described. At the beginning of this course each student writes a paper with the title "Introducing Myself" in which he presents not only a short autobiography but also an account of his educational and vocational plans and a statement of his philosophy of life. By means of this paper his instructor, his Dean, and his faculty adviser can come to know him better as a person.

Other aspects of the work in "The Mind" are designed to help the student to know himself better. Although the basic facts and principles of general psychology constitute most of the content of this course, self-discovery is promoted in a variety of ways. Each student prepares a "psychological profile" of himself based on the results of tests taken during Freshman Week and in class later in the semester. Special emphasis in this course is placed on the principles of personality growth.

In close relation to this work, the Bureau of Psycho-Educational Service endeavors to assist students in two ways. First, it provides an opportunity for individual counseling on personality problems. Second, it helps students come to an intelligent vocational decision by making available to them sources of vocational information and the results of tests of vocational interests and aptitudes. It makes no attempt to tell the student that he should enter a given vocation, but it endeavors to help him to make his own choice intelligently.

Vocational guidance functions are also fulfilled by some of the freshman assembly meetings that are held weekly throughout the first semester. One meeting is devoted to a lecture on the problem of choosing a vocation, and a number of meetings are addressed by representatives of some of the more important vocations. Because the students develop and present some of the programs, there is an opportunity for potential leadership to manifest itself and for a sense of group loyalty to arise. Sometime after Thanksgiving an assembly meeting is devoted to the organization of the freshmen as a class.

There are four types of skills that college students need to acquire if they have not acquired them in their earlier educational experience: — skills in silent reading, in writing, in using a library, and in studying. The program for freshmen at Juniata endeavors to develop each of these types of skills in a personal way.

Although students normally spend many hours in silent reading while in college, the ability to read rapidly and well is by no means a thing that one can take for granted in college students. Some of them, indeed, are no more efficient as readers than is the average child in the eighth grade. The reading clinic at Juniata attempts to diagnose each student's reading weaknesses and to inform him of them. Exercises are then administered and prescribed for the correction of these reading defects.

In contrast to the traditional course in "Freshman Composition", the English conference plan at Juniata is a distinctly personalized plan for the development of skill in writing, involving, as it does, biweekly student-teacher conferences based on papers written by the student for his various courses. An account of this plan has appeared in a previous issue of this publication.

Many freshmen are almost completely innocent of any knowledge as to how one can make effective use of a library. In view of the important place the library occupies in the educational procedures of a liberal arts college, this is a problem of some seriousness. At Juniata freshmen receive at least four or five hours of instruction along this line. Much of this time is devoted to work on individual problems. Each student is assigned the task of choosing a topic and preparing a bibliography that will later be useful in the writing of a paper for one of his courses.

Recent educational experimentation points to the conclusion that the best way in which students can learn how to study is by studying—with personal guidance. In line with this idea, a how-to-study laboratory was inaugurated for Juniata freshmen. In this laboratory the starting point for the analysis of each individual's study problems is a "study habits inventory". The results of this inventory and of the tests taken during Freshman Week are then used as the basis for the prescription of more efficient study methods. The prescribed methods can be put into immediate practice, for the study laboratory is a study period for all students in it with the exception of the student with whom the instructor is conferring at any given moment.

The advisory system for freshmen is designed to promote friendly relationships between students and faculty members. Although faculty advisers sometimes have social functions for their advisees as a group, their chief purpose is that of serving as personal counselors.

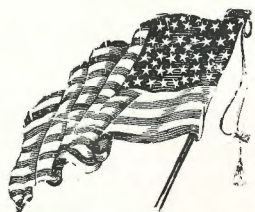

The Personnel Council is an organization of administrative officers and teachers who are actively concerned with student problems. Attention is frequently given to the problems of individual freshmen.

Several years ago a cumulative record folder was devised that presents an over-view of the development of each Juniata student. This is much more than a tabulation of credits and marks, including, as it does, forty-two categories such as the following: type of home community; occupation, health, education, religion, and date and place of birth of father and mother; high school activities, rank in high school graduating class; reasons for choosing Juniata; off-campus college service; dormitory room and room-mates; loans and scholarships; health and use of health services; personality test results; vocational experiences; travel; special accomplishments; academic record; honors and prizes; extra-curricular activities; church membership. In thus bringing together in one place all of the types of information concerning each student that the College possesses, the College is in a position to know each student more fully and therefore to serve him more effectively.

The Dean of Men and the Dean of Women of course maintain close personal contacts with freshmen. Most of their work, however, falls outside the scope of this article.

The personalized program for freshmen at Juniata reflects the concern of the College for each student as a unique individual. In a day when hosts of people are being taught that the individual is merely the slave of the state and a deified leader, it is reassuring to recall that there are institutions that continue to affirm and to emphasize the value of the development of the individual. It is not unreasonable to believe that in the long run those institutions will survive that have an abiding faith in the worth of every human being and that have a program consciously formulated with a view to promoting the welfare of each individual that comes within their influence.

The Draft and College

All men students at the college were informed about their draft status in relation to new developments in a letter which was sent out July 15. Alumni will be interested in deferment possibilities so we present excerpts:

"The following information for our students, registered and prospective, is based upon data given to President Ellis at a conference in Philadelphia, from which he has just returned. This conference of colleges in the Third Corps Area was called by the Joint Procurement Committee of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, and representatives of all the services, including Air Corps, were present.

The purpose of the meeting was to give a "summary of opportunities for enlistment offered by the several services to male college students of good character and officer-like qualities enrolled in accredited colleges or junior colleges", and to receive from the college representatives such suggestions as would help to put the plan into operation.

Briefly, the purpose is to devise a plan for cooperation instead of competition between the different branches of the service. It involves giving students a chance to know all the opportunities before deciding which branch of the service to enter while they continue in college for at least two years.

If you are a pre-medical, a chemistry or physics, accounting or economics, mathematics or psychology major, or a ministerial student, your selective service board may defer you after the second year without enlistment in the Reserve Corps. It seems that this deferment is to be expected and is to be preferred to the enlistment while in college for this type of student. If such deferment is not available for you and you have a good college record, the College can recommend you for enlistment in either Army or Navy up to the quota allotted to us.

Please write the Registrar's Office if you need further information."

Coach Mike Snider

Snider Promoted

Mike Snider, popular Juniata alumnus and athlete, has recently been named to succeed Coach "Carty" Swartz as head of the physical education department. Coach Swartz, who was at the helm in athletics for the past ten years, is now directing U.S.O. activities in the state of North Carolina. Snider is accepting an assignment which has not been made lighter because of the present emergency. In fact, the physical training program has been enlarged to include the total college in an effort to meet new demands for physical fitness.

With schedules already set for football, basketball, baseball, track, and tennis and an ambitious physical fitness and intra-mural program planned, there will be a great deal of activity in the gymnasium, on the three athletic fields, the golf course, and the tennis courts.

Let's take a look at Mike Snider. Back in 1923-1926 he played end in football, guard in basketball, and starred in track and tennis. He has had physical education training at the College of American Gymnastic Union, Indianapolis, Indiana, and has coached for two and one-half years in high school and for twelve years on the college field.

'41-'42 Season in Review

Juniata sports fans will be interested in having an over-all picture of the 1941-42 sports season. A record of the wins and losses is given below. The grand total shows that Juniata won during the season a total of 20 and lost 17.
